Living the Langdon LAIR life

Hello Langdon school families,

On Friday, Mr. Legault and I took 30 grade 8s to SAIT to check out some potential future careers. These included bricklaying, roofing, legal assistant and X-Ray diagnostics. We were very impressed with their enthusiasm and how respectful and attentive the students were. We hope this is the first of many opportunities to visit various educational institutions. We are also looking forward to hosting 15 presenters for our Career Exploration morning, April 15th. Students in grade 6-8 will attend two sessions that match their interests as closely as possible. We are grateful to our guests for volunteering their time to share their experiences and inspire our middle school students.

We are looking forward to seeing everyone on Parent/teacher/student interview evening and/or for our Spring Showcase of Learning. On Wednesday, food trucks will be in the parent loop. Grab some dinner/snacks before or after coming into the school to see the awesome student displays and demos. The Scholastic book fair is also back and open 4:30 to 7:30 on Wednesday and Thursday! Come to the Learning Commons and find your next great read while also supporting our Langdon School Learning Commons!

Reminder: lost and found items will be donated Apr 11. Please encourage your child to take a look in the overflowing shelves. Or come take a look if you are attending on Wednesday or Thursday.

On Wednesday at 4pm, I will be having the last Parent Volunteer Orientation. If you plan to volunteer in the school or chaperone any potential fieldtrips that may be coming up, please check in at the office for paperwork and a brief presentation.

There have been a couple inquiries about class requests for next year. This process will be shared after Spring break. We will know staffing needs over the next couple weeks which then determines class configurations.

Enjoy the spring weather and have a great week!
Shannon Storey
